A true fire-cracker, Julie-Maude's energy is contagious to say the least. With her business administration studies as well as a Master's degree in project management, she began her career mostly in marketing. Counting amongst the Worximity veterans, she began her journey at Worximity three years ago as a marketing intern to later become a business analyst and eventually bloom into her current position of Customer Success Lead. At the head of her team, she goes above and beyond to provide support and training to our new and current clients.
